'FAKE COLONEL'

KUWAIT: Detectives are working on identifying a person who called Interior Ministry operations claiming to be a lieutenant colonel and asked for information about certain people. When operations officers checked on him, they found he was lying.

Addict beats sister

Detectives are working on arresting a drug addict who beat his eldest sister, took her ATM card and withdrew the amount left from her salary. The woman told police that her brother went to her house while her husband was out. He then asked her for KD 400, and when she refused, he beat her, took her debit card and forced her to tell him the PIN while threatening to beat her daughter. She said that 30 minutes later, she received an SMS from the bank telling her that KD 870 was withdrawn from her bank account. The woman called her husband, who rushed home, and when he saw the bruises on her face, he took her to the police station.

Illegal entry

A Gulf national accused two men for entering his house without permission, then escaping when they saw him. He noted down their car's license plate number. Detectives are working on their arrest.

Under the influence

A Kuwaiti in his 30s was arrested by Fahaheel police for suspicions of being drunk, and will be sent to forensics to determine whether he had alcohol in his blood. Meanwhile, police are looking for a man who collided with two patrol cars, then escaped on foot, leaving his friend and a car with two collapsed tires behind. The suspects will be charged with DUI and damaging public property. The car was impounded.

Bottles of liquor

Ahmadi police arrested an Argentinean and an Indian with a large amount of liquor they were selling to expats. The two escaped when policemen approached the car they were in, but were caught and brought back to the car, which contained 109 large and 17 small bottles. — Al Rai/Al Anbaa

A 'KUWAITI'

By Abdellatif Al-Duaij

The late Abdulhussein Abdulredha fought against backwardness and extremism along with other great artists. There isn't a single Kuwaiti, as far as I know, who looked at Abdulhussein as a different man or a stranger. The bedoons did not look at him as (hadhar) urban or the Sunnis as a Shiite. Those who call themselves the children of the fence did not see him as an outsider. Everyone cried for the son and actor of Kuwait, who appeared only as a "Kuwaiti" through his work and that is how he departed from us, as a Kuwaiti.

An individual does not necessarily have to be famous or generous to be a distinguished Kuwaiti like the late Abdeulhussein. Every citizen has the same recognition, honor and rights that were granted to the late Abdulhussein Abdulredha when he died. We are all supposed to be Kuwaitis, we differ from each other as individuals and each of us have our own personality, performance, and capabilities, that make us somebody, but at the end we remain still children of Adam, according to the law of Kuwaitis.

In primitive societies, or societies of past eras, human beings are looked at collectively, not as a distinguished individual, but as a tribe or sect or even the region doesn't matter whether Azmi or Mutairi, Sunni or Shiite, from the inside or outside, from the east or from qibla. In the good society that is ruled by law and true democratic principles in justice and equality, the human being is an individual with his qualifications and abilities, and he is measured by them, and with them he is categorized and promoted.

He is protected by the law and his rights are safeguarded by state institutions. It is not the tribe, sect and not even the family or those who have influence on them among friends as in this case with great regret. Abdulhssein Abdulredha, a man we loved and adored for his art and contribution died a Kuwaiti, and we buried him as a Kuwaiti. He united us in his life, and united us even more in his death. Let us remember him from today as a Kuwaiti and that's it.

ABU ADNAN

By Dr Nermin Al-Houti

"O soul at peace, return to your Lord, well-pleased, well-pleasing. Join my servants. Enter my paradise." The Quran 89:27-29. You will always be in our hearts "Abu Adnan." I cannot find the words to mourn over my mentor and legend of the Gulf theater other than "May Allah bestow his mercy on you Abdulhussein Abdulredha, and we ask Allah to let you into heaven, and give your family, fans and students patience during this sad time. You have left us, but what reduces our sadness is the thought that you will always remain in our soul, school, work and all that you instilled in Kuwait and Gulf's culture which will always be a guiding light for us.

Bu Adnan has been a beacon of generosity and humbleness. He is the dean of the Gulf theater, what he has instilled will help develop Kuwaiti theater; this is the history through which he will always be remembered. Bu Adnan had only one goal that is to unite the people, which was fulfilled when people from different countries united in prayers for him. Even his departure became a day of love despite the sadness that shrouded the Arab world.

Though he departed, he is present in our hearts just like he used to and you will always remain the present in Kuwait's and Arabian Gulf's history. Thanks to the leader of culture and Gulf information, our father and leader of humanity HH the Amir Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmad Al-Jaber Al-Sabah. May Allah protect him, for all that you have done, your highness and for the dean of the Gulf theater Abdulhussein Abdelredha, May Allah bestow His mercy on him."
