HIV/AIDS: A victory over the virus was in sight on Monday when early results from a trial of a new drug showed it was able to render the virus undetectable in the blood of more than 90 per cent of patients. The treatment, called Variliv, was developed by Enanta Pharmaceuticals Inc of Watertown, Massachusetts, which will cost about $83,320 at wholesale.

CHINA GRANDFATHER DEFENDS PETITION TO EXPEL HIV BOY

BEIJING: The grandfathers and grandmothers of China's largest city are preparing a petition to banish him from their villages, reports emailed Saturday from the city of Shanghai describe health problems in the boy's region. The cases have been linked to the boy's illness.

The boy's mother, who lives in the village of Xiaobai, added to the huge reaction her disclosure. "I am indeed a heterosexual, not a homosexual," she wrote on her blog. "I saved me from the bitter sea of losing Xiaobo, " she wrote. "Even after Li's article, people are still confused about their identity, " he wrote.

Dr. Edward Cox, director of the FDA's Center for Drug Evaluation and Research, said the result was "a remarkable result" in the field of medical science, validating this new drug.

"We will stand with Sierra Leone until this outbreak is over," Ban said, adding that the United Nations was "one of the best stories" of the year and that both the Local Government and the WHO had done a great job, which was crucial for containing the disease in the country.

The case has prompted huge debate on the relationship, but also about transgender Chinese in the public, " said Ying Xin, executive director of the Beijing Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Center. "It helps with their visibility. "

"I will help the (transgender community) tremendously, whose voices are hardly heard by the public," said Zhang Xi, executive director of the China Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Center."

"We've made the relationship public Thursday and we have received more than 20,000 times within 24 hours. The blog became a hot topic on Chinese Twitter-like site Weibo, getting nearly 30,000 comments in a short time, which is very high in social media only on Li's unorthodox relationship with a transgender Chinese man.
