Bailey to design
Claridge's Christmas tree

Burberry's Christopher Bailey will design Claridge's Christmas Tree. The creative director and CEO of the British fashion brand will follow in the footsteps of designers including Domenico Dolce and Stefano Gabbana, John Galiano and Lanvin's Alber Elbaz, who have previously decorated the tree at the luxury London hotel. Christopher said: "Christmas is one of my favourite times of year so I was delighted to be asked to design the Claridge's Christmas Tree."

"We wanted the tree to reflect the playfulness of the season with a little bit of the English weather thrown in. We also love the idea that the tree comes to life as guests pass by bringing a wonderful touch of festive magic to their stay." Vogue.co.uk reports that the tree - which will be made up of over 100 umbrellas - will explore the relationship between light and dark.

Claridge's general manager Thomas Kochs said of the collaboration: "Christmas has always been a truly special time of year at Claridge's and we are delighted to welcome Christopher Bailey to add the enchanting Christmas magic and creativity of Burberry to our lobby. "We are particularly proud to be flying the British flag this year with London being at the heart of both Claridge's and Burberry, and it is this shared sense of heritage and the key part we both play in London life that makes Christopher's collaboration with us so special. The Claridge's Christmas Tree has long symbolized the start of the festive season in the capital and we hope our annual tradition will continue to be a part of our guests' memories as they become part of ours." —Bang Showbiz

KENDALL AND
KYLIE JENNER
HIT WITH LAWSUIT

Kendall and Kylie Jenner have been hit with a lawsuit after they allegedly copied Island Company's trademarked logo. The famous sisters are being sued by the resort clothing brand founded in 2002 for reportedly stealing its phrase, "Quit your job. Buy a ticket. Get a tan. Fall in love. Never return," according to the New York Post newspaper. Island Company has claimed PacSun has created T-shirts within Kendall and Kylie's clothing line with the similar motto, "Run away. Fall in love. Never return," which it believes will cause "confusion and deception among consumers."

Island Company, which is highly popular with the likes of Brad Pitt, Cameron Diaz and Johnny Depp, has reportedly asked the sisters and PacSun to remove the T-shirts from their line as it's been their trademark phrase since 2005. Kendall, 19, and Kylie, 18, previously said they were inspired to team up with PacSun and design their own clothes after seeing their half-sisters Kim, Kourtney and Khloe create their own line, The Kardashian Collection.

Speaking in an interview with the brand earlier this year, Kendall said: "We've always been very involved in fashion. I think seeing our sisters do their clothing line was very inspiring. We kind of saw their whole process and we wanted to try it out, and when the opportunity came with PacSun, we just jumped on it." —Bang Showbiz
